MEMORANDUM FOR: Director of Training

Hugh:

As I mentioned on the telephone the Director talked about "Studies in Intelligence" at his Morning Meeting on 26 August. He started by stating his view that "Studies" has been a consistently excellent publication and that he considered it a very good vehicle in which to record things we have done in a manner different from coverage which might be given in a history. He cited the recent piece on OXCART and the upcoming piece [] as examples. Reverting to the broader context he noted that he wished to ensure that we do not lose track of these types of items. He also mentioned the value to newly recruited personnel who have available for example [] the complete set of "Studies" for perusal at their leisure. He then solicited submission of ideas for desirable items to be covered in the "Studies" and urged that all components permit good writers to make contributions. He specifically asked that requests for assistance from specific officers not be turned down on the basis of pressure of other work noting that publication of a specific piece can be adjusted to the time availability of the author.
